My name is: Rebecca

My job title is: Outreach teacher & SENCO

The best part of my job... I've been a teacher for over 20 years and love that every day is different. Helping students who have been worried about a particular subject to feel more confident at having a go is probably the best part of my current job but because I'm the SENCo, it's also quite satisfying securing an EHCP for a student who has been told they won't qualify for one.

Things I enjoy doing in my free time:

When I'm not working, I enjoy wandering around London and finding out about weird historical things about alleyways, street names etc. (I really like the Voicemap walking tour app for this!).

I sing in a choir, enjoy going to the theatre (especially if I can get cheap or free tickets to see something a bit strange) and know the words to lots of musicals.

Lots of my time is taken up helping to run a children's sports club and a community brass band. I spend far too much time trying to design posters for events for both of those organisations - I gave up GCSE art many millions of years ago because I couldn't draw a nose. Thankfully Canva has been invented since then so no one is subjected to my drawing!
